Color usage

The following outlines best practices for color usage and combinations with our presentation decks. We should always prioritize our white and light steel colors for backgrounds and use Steel Gray 75 sparingly.

We use color sparingly so that when it is used it is more impactful.

Our secondary colors should not be used for our presentation decks unless there is a need to visually represent a large amount of data for info graphics.

Please reach out to the marketing department if you have questions about this.

White

Primarily use Black text over White backgrounds.

Orange is used as our primary highlight.

Blue can be used as well but should be used sparingly.

Light Steel

Primarily use Black text over Light Steel backgrounds.

Blue is the best color to use as a highlight.

X Orange highlights should be avoided here as it does not give enough contrast over light steel.

Extending Equipment Lifetime with Smart Oil Monitoring

Opportunity

Being one of the world's largest oil & gas companies, our client strives for the leadership in digitally-enabled IIoT solutions.

They partnered with GlobalLogic to design online oil condition monitoring service that uses sensor data and advanced analytics to deliver actionable insights about the condition of the oil.

Our goal was to use leading techniques to identify and predict failures, combining oil analysis with artificial intelligence to diagnose and improve machine health.

Value created

GlobalLogic was involved in all stages of solution development: from the sensor trial phase conducted by the client's research team to a full-fledged digitally-enabled solution implementation.

We planned, organized, and executed design research interviews with the end users and worked on every aspect of the UX design. In addition, we developed a web application for the service.

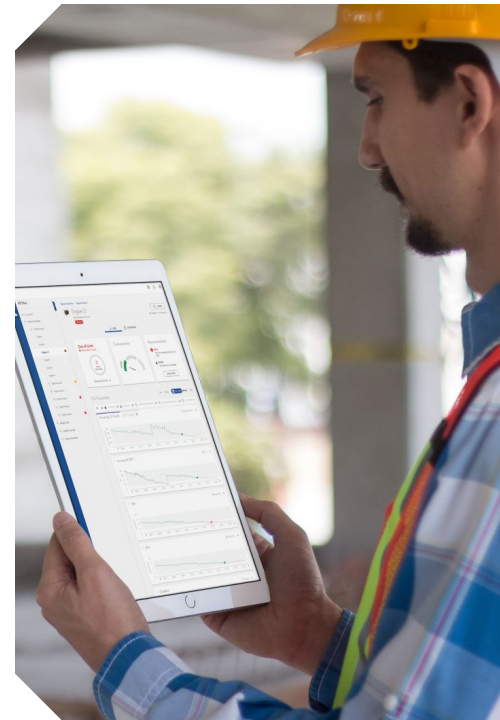

Our team was responsible for data connection, ingestion, and transformation. We also provided DevOps, QA, and Test Automation services.

Impact

The solution improves upon traditional lab-based oil analysis in that the oil is continuously monitored, allowing businesses to catch potential problems before they cause damage to their equipment.

The insights are delivered in real-time via the web interface and email alerts, and can be integrated with existing monitoring and telemetry systems via API connections.

By delivering actionable insights, the solution can help businesses respond to anomalies before failure occurs, reducing unplanned downtime.
